

Welcome to The Image Suite

A very warm and sincere welcome to all visitors to the The Image Suite website.

Well, the lavender fields have gone for a while (reference to the old header), we are back in Spain having been in the Middle East for some while, and about to embark on new photographic adventures, not just here in Spain, but throughout Europe and the Middle East. Indeed, some of them have already commenced. You can see from the above new 'header' image that our involvement in food photography grows. We are already engaged in a new and exciting cook book, and we are some way down the line in producing our own food guides, but with a difference! Check back for the details of both the cook book and the guides in due course...

In addition, we have some new, unique and exciting course offerings to follow, and whilst we should really have addressed this earlier, the back end of 2010 is likely to see us make important technical upgrades to our website. (I'm dreading the prospect....but I know it has to be done!)

In the meantime, we are still available for commercial work, especially food photography and Photoshop workshops... We hope you enjoy the website!

Thank you and very best wishes
